

Located in the heart of Berlin, Memorado is an exciting, new company. Having seed funding from several investors, Memorado is set to become Europe's leading online brain gym. Our vision is to "Make People Smarter".

Currently, for our office in Berlin, we are looking for a:

Flash Game Developer

What you will be doing!

- Development of smart, responsive and impressive flash games for our growing and international user base
- Create new visionary game features to enhance the user experience
- Pitch new ideas to the team to create the best games to make people smarter
- Analyze real time game metrics and adapt game designs accordingly
- Work closely with designers, product managers and other experienced frontend and backend developers to build one smooth user experience
- Experience variety of work: develop new features, analyse user data, adapt existing implementation, whatever is most challenging at any time
- Take on full project responsibility after no time and lead new development areas

What we are looking for!

- Proven experience in developing high-quality flash games (AS3) loved by users
- Enthusiasm for pragmatic code and an eye for simplicity
- Overwhelming motivation that positively affects the whole team
- English skills that are great enough to read this job description
- A will to work in a super young but exciting startup with everything that comes with it

Why you should think hard about applying!

If you feel like it's time to create games that change people's lives, do not pass up this opportunity. Our goal is to help people become smarter in everyday life, at work and prevent brain decay for the elderly. We believe we can only achieve this by bringing the best developers together and bring out the best in them.

Apply now - in any form (hint: Games Portfolio works wonders) - to:

jobs@memorado.com